

Let's Give Trump a Chance

by Phillip W. Weiss

The ravishes of time levels everything. No one escapes its merciless grip. Trump is 78 years old. He is the second-oldest POTUS in US history, the first being the current POTUS, Joe Biden. Fake News, which moved heaven and earth to try to get Kamala Harris elected, is already sweeping Harris under the rug. She is now yesterday's news. Now all the attention is on Trump who is now the most powerful politician in the world.

Trump scored an astounding victory that rocked the world. The Dems tried to take down the Trump, the Rock of Gibraltar of politics, and failed. Now they are reeling, trying to figure out what went wrong, hurling recriminations and issuing cryptic statements as they await the installation of the Trump administration that they did everything they could to stop.

The Dems lost because the Dem party is controlled by a clique of America-hating wackos who, using the Dem party as a cover, are promoting an agenda the goal of which is to destroy the United States. This clique hates the United States and believes that the entire country is systemically racist and unjust. While their rhetoric is Marxist, they are not Marxists. They are not a re-do of the Communist Party. Rather, they are a hodgepodge of groups who harbor an emotional revulsion for the United States.

However, while it is a relief relieved that Trump won, his victory does not generate feelings of ecstasy. Let's give Trump the benefit of the doubt and give him a chance to fix what the current administration broke. But let's not expect miracles. Four years of Biden has caused so much damage that no amount of remedial action will suffice to fix it all.

The anti-America propoganda spewed by the Democratic party is so deeply embedded in American culture that we may never be able to rid ourselves of it. While it can be suppressed, it cannot be eliminated. It is like a disease that goes into remission. It lurks in the inner recesses of the body until such time that the medicine wears off and then remerges in full force to consume and kill the body. This is just the way it is. While thousands are singing God Bless America at Yankee Stadium, others who have embedded themselves in places such as schools, unions, and political associations tirelessly work to bring down the United States. These are the same people who call other people Nazis and fascists and do so not as talking points. They mean what they say and if given the chance would act on those words. Hopefully Trump will take decisive action to protect the nation from those people. Time will tell.
